About This Game

Virtual reality? Check. Rooms with puzzles? Check. A homicidal sentient robot that entices you to continue with the promise of fictional desserts? ... No, actually. We don't have that.

Escape the Gray is a VR exclusive room-escape game. Each room's puzzle is unique. The number of rooms and their order is randomized with each play through. Get to the end? Play again and find something new. Stuck in a room? Play Drop the Candle*, our free mini-game, when you get frustrated. Or just throw stuff and make a mess. That might help.

Did you find all the rooms? No problem, new ones will be coming soon, along with achievements.

*Drop the Candle mini-game is just dropping a candle on the floor or table. It's not a real mini-game. It's not related to any puzzles. It will not help you... or will it?

This is a simple room escape game that I found to be pretty interesting. Despite it's simplicity, it is challenging and some of the setups are pretty cool. I thought it was worth the $2. For that low of a price, I found it to be a pretty cool game. I haven't finished it all, but from what I have played, I'd say that it's worth getting, especially if you have a friend\family member that is try to help you.

Basically, it's nothing extraordinary, but for only $2, it's worth giving it a try.. The puzzles in this game are ok. Not amazing but not bad either. Unfortunately the game really doesn't feel very polished and it is a little buggy. Objects sometimes float in midair when you release them and other times they drop to the floor. Of particular annoyance, I tried the larger rooms since teleport was added to the game, but I reached one room and the teleport stopped working properly so I couldn't progress any further.

If the bugs were removed and the game polished up a bit, I would recommend this game to someone who is really into escape\puzzle room games, but if you're not fussed either way, this isn't a particularly special VR game and you're not missing out.

Would I recommend this game to a friend? No. But if they really felt the urge to try it, I wouldn't warn them against it either.
